CHRISTMAS CAROLS TO BE PUBLISHED BY THE GLENDALE DAILY PRESS

One to Be Given Daily for Practice, Until Christmas for the Community Service

SPIRIT OF DICKENS' STORY TO BE TOLD

True Xmas Spirit to Be Stimulated for the Big Celebration on Night of Nights

By CORINNE ORFF

In its desire to assist in promoting the spirit of Christmas, which is to dominate in Glendale this year through the Community Christmas celebration, the Press will publish each day until Christmas the text and some descriptive notes of one of the carols which have been selected for the event. The descriptive material is compiled by the Bureau of Music of Community Service, Inc., New York, and is furnished through the courtesy of the Christmas carol committee of Glendale, which includes Mrs. Dora Gibson, Mrs. W. Q. Widdows, Miss E. Brenneman and Mrs. Harry McMullin. Stories of the Christmas carols have been prepared for Community Service by Professor Peter W. Wykema of the University of Wisconsin.

Christmas Carols is a term used to describe a large variety of songs which are to be used during the Christmas season. They are of two main types—the religious and the convivial: the one celebrating the birth of Jesus; the other exalting mirth and feasting. Only lately has much attention been given to this material by serious musicians. During the eighteenth century the carol literature was of the humblest kind. Such material as was available was handed on by tradition. Many of the older ones have undoubtedly been entirely lost and many that we now hear have been considerably modernized. Davis Gilbert seems to have been the first person who attempted to fix these vanishing memories of the past.

"GOD REST YOU MERRY, GENTLEMEN"
(Traditional)

God rest you merry, gentlemen,
Let nothing you dismay,
Remember Christ our Saviour
Was born on Christmas Day,
To save us all from Satan's pow'r
When we were gone astray;

CHORUS

O tidings of comfort and joy, comfort and joy,
O tidings of comfort and joy.

From God our Heavenly Father,
A blessed Angel came;
And unto certain shepherds
Brought tidings of the same;
How that in Bethlehem was born
The Son of God by name.

O tidings, etc.

Now to the Lord sing praises,
All you within this place,
And with true love and brotherhood
Each other now embrace;
This holy tide of Christmas
All other doth deface.

O tidings, etc.

One of the incidents of his crusty, unsympathetic days which Scrooge of Dicken's "Christmas Carol" learned to regret is thus described in the first part of the story: "Foggier yet, and colder! Piercing, searching, biting cold . . . The owner of one scant young nose, gnawed and numbed by the hungry cold as bones are gnawed by dogs, stooped down at Scrooge's keyhole to regale him with a Christmas carol, but at first round of

'God rest you merry, gentlemen!
Let nothing you dismay!'

Scrooge seized the ruler with such energy of action that the singer fled in terror, leaving the keyhole to the fog and even more congenial frost."

This is one of the earliest of the English carols, dating back at least to the Seventeenth Century. In quaint verses it rehearses the New Testament story of the birth of Jesus. It is a song of joy and glad tidings even though it is decidedly minor in its tonality. But here, as in many other cases, the minor does not give a feeling of sadness, but rather produces the effect of quaintness, of an old-time flavor. The vigorous marching rhythm also dissipates any suggestion of sorrow, and rather sets the heart and feet a-bounding in regular cadence. No wonder it has been sung by outdoor carolers for centuries.

Song leaflets containing the texts for all the carols to be used may be obtained free of charge at the Glendale Community Service Christmas headquarters, the Chamber of Commerce or the Glendale Muhic Company.

NEW METHODIST CHURCH OPENS DOORS HERE

M. E. South Holds First Services With About 20 Families Enrolled

The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, corner Broadway and Cedar, had a great opening day on Sunday, December 10. The pastor, Rev. D. M. Barr, was sent to Glendale to organize this church and to be its pastor for this coming year. The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, having bought the Glendale Presbyterian Church (The Church of the Lighted Cross) had the first service on Sunday between 2 and 4:30 P. M. Rev. Shuler preaching the opening sermon which was done well.

Rev. Shuler called on Rev. D. M. Barr, the pastor, to read the names of those who were united with the church, the pastor reading off fifty-two names, representing from fifteen to twenty families. These names were secured for membership in the last 30 days.

Rev. Barr arrived in Glendale on November 10 with his family, beginning work at once, and working day and night that he might creditably fulfill the mission which he was sent to accomplish.

At the close of the service Rev. Shuler called the first quarterly conference which was officially authorized by Dr. S. H. Werleine, the presiding older. He authorized Rev. S. M. Cheek to hold the quarterly conferences in his absence.

The pastor having all nominations for church offices in hand, nominated the board of trustees, the board of stewards, also a discriture, each board having been unanimously elected. The quarterly conference adjourned immediately. The pastor called a church conference and nominated other officers in the church, and they were elected, after which adjournment was taken. The Broadway M. E. Church, South, was the name voted by the quarterly conference.

Rev. Tinning, assistant pastor of the Glendale Presbyterian Church, and president of the ministerial association of Glendale, was authorized by the association to speak a word of welcome to the M. E. Church, South, coming to Glendale. His message was very appropriate for the occasion. Rev. Rasmus of the First Methodist Church, was also present and gave words of welcome. Dr. Edmonds, pastor of the Glendale Presbyterian Church, also extended welcome and greetings to the new congregation coming in to take their place when they enter their new building on Louise and Harvard.

The pastor has the charter of membership at one hundred. He is hoping to complete this list of one hundred members (the names of which he purposes to place in tabulated form on the wall) by Easter Sunday.

The pastor of the M. E. Church, South, was also given a welcome by the gathering at the Central Christian Church on Thanksgiving Day, during the thanksgiving service.

Services announced yesterday included preaching each Sunday 2 o'clock; Sunday school, 3 p. m.; women's missionary society and leagues, 4 p. m.

W. L. Sturges of 310 North Cedar street is spending several days in Phoenix, Arizona, on business. He will return early this week.

The check and bank books are all in the French grays.

There were over one hundred depositors at the opening on the first day and the later depositors were far in excess of the expectations of the officials, who expressed themselves as being much gratified at the generous support given the new institution on its opening day. INEFFICIENCY OF L. A. SERVICE IS INDICATED

Dr. Duncan Gets Results From Glendale Health Dept. Without Delay

Dr. A. M. Duncan, M. D., of 1607 South San Fernando road, reports that last week he took care of a suspected diphtheria case on Parkdale avenue, just across the line in Los Angeles and sent in his test to the Glendale city laboratory. He received a report back from the board of health within 24 hours.

He had another similar case and sent for a report to the Los Angeles board of health a week ago Saturday night and received his report back from them the following Thursday, making a total of five days to complete it.

The point Dr. Duncan indicated is, if Glendale should join Los Angeles, she would be under the control of the Los Angeles board of health and in place of getting a report back in 24 hours, it would take from two to five days. This is merely one phase of the question.

GLENDALE BUILDING IS MENACED BY ANNEXATION, DECLARES CITY EXPERT

Asa Hall Tells Some of the Varieties of Permits That Would Be Required Upon Consolidation

COMPARES STREET SERVICE OF BOTH CITIES

Many Parts of Los Angeles Now Without Any Kind of Sewer, Although Paying for It

That the building of homes and business structures in Glendale would be greatly hindered in the event of annexation of Glendale to Los Angeles is the belief of Asa Hall, 636 North Louise street, formerly head accountant of the city of Los Angeles.

"Everything in the way of a permit for any kind of building from the cesspool and the screen porch and chicken shed to the business block or pretentious mansion would have t obe secured in Los Angeles," said Mr. Hall this morning. "There would be no rapid-fire results, such as are secured now by the builders and prospective home owners in Glendale.

"When a man wants a permit to build a home here now, it takes him just about ten minutes to get it. In the event of annexation it would take twenty times that long. Then you want inspections at the different stages of the work as are rightfully required by ordinance and you would have to wait on the building department of Los Angeles, and very often you would wait a long, long time.

"This is a point that should not be overlooked. Glendale is proud of the way she is building up, and we cannot afford to do anything that will hinder our progress along this line.

"There are other things that the people of Glendale should not forget while considering this annexation proposition. Remember, in the first place if you are to get anything through going into the city you are surely going to pay for it. If Glendale wants aqueduct water, the people of this section will have to form themselves into a municipal improvement district and vote bonds, all of which would have to be paid by ourselves, as all other annexed districts have had to do. We would have to do this in addition to assuming all of the bonded indebtedness of Los Angeles.

"The condition of the streets of the city is another thing that should be taken into consideration. There isn't a chance in the world that in the event of annexation Glendale's streets would be in the very satisfactory condition they are at the present time. I would like to draw your attention to a situation which developed recently in Los Angeles, when 5000 residents met in a body at the Manchester Avenue school and went before the city council in an effort to have a flood water situation remedied. It was stated that at least 50 per cent of the children attending the seven schools between Main and Vermont in the region of Manchester were unable to attend school on account of the flooded streets. In some instances the water was as much as four feet in depth, it is claimed. Of the enrollment of 1200 in the Manchester school, but 300 were able to get to school, and, it is stated, there was not a child under 10 years in the school. Does that look as though the Los Angeles street department is giving the people of that city adequate service. And it must be remembered that that is right in the heart of Los Angeles city, while Glendale would be one of the 'outlying districts.'

"I happen to know that Los Angeles will not be able to take care of the sewage from Glendale for years to come, notwithstanding the assertions to the contrary. There are many sections in Los Angeles city right now that have no connection with the Los Angeles sewer system. They are still using cesspools. If they cannot take care of these sections, how can they care for Glendale's sewage needs?

"If Los Angeles wants to play fair, why don't she agree to share in our bonded indebtedness, just as we would agree to carry our share of her debts?

"Another thing, one reason why San Pedro, Wilmington, Hollywood, Colegrove and East Hollywood do not have higher tax rates is that those sections are not taxed for any of the aqueduct bonds voted by Los Angeles before those sections went into that city. Glendale would have to assume her share of all of the bonded debts of Los Angeles."

MISSIONARY DAY AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Mrs. Fred Hagin Speaks; Evening Sermon on "What and Where Is Heaven?"

Sunday was a great day at Central Christian church for the morning worship hour was given up to the C. W. B. M. for their annual "day." There was a fine attendance despite the rain. Rev. Cole, in lieu of the usual sermon to the children, read for them and the older folk as well, a letter from Willard Learned, former Sunday school superintendent, now a student at the College of Missions, Indianapolis. He and his wife, formerly Miss Grace Utter, are studying there together for the African mission field, and expect to go out to the Congo region next fall. The letter told of his busy life in Indianapolis and of his joy in the prospect of beginning the mission work in another year.

The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Floyd Mercer and prayer offered by Mrs. C. W. Bacon. Mrs. Fred E. Hagin, for 22 years a missionary in Japan, was the speaker for the meeting. She told how, in 1900, her husband, after 11 years of preaching in different churches in the home-land, started to Nippon land with her, the three small children, six trunks and a lot of suitcases. The long years of work in a new field, with constantly brightening prospects and many souls saved, were detailed and some very interesting stories of the work told. The crowning achievement of their work, the establishment of an institutional church and day nursery in East Tokio, was dwelt upon and the hope expressed that some way would be opened for the continued enlargement of this great institution. The increasing friendliness of the royal family and some of the nobility as evidenced by the decrees of the emperor and empress, the marked favor shown the workers in the great International Sunday school convention held recently in Tokio and the taking up of Y. M. C. A. work by the crown prince, were cited as bright omens for the future.

Just before the close of the service the men who were to go out in the afternoon, two by two, in the annual every-member canvass to secure pledges of funds to make up the 1923 budget of $10,500, were called to the front and dedicated to the work by the pastor in a fervent prayer. This budget, which provides for the expenses of the Sunday school, also, as one of the departments of the church, was mostly raised during the afternoon.

The evening sermon topic was "What and Where is Heaven?" This sermon was an answer to a question sent to the pastor in the words quoted. He said that there are many references to heaven in the New Testament and Jesus spoke of it in positive terms many times. He said it was a place of "many mansions" provided by Him for the faithful, that they might be with Him forever. No one knows where it is but in it will be no sorrow nor weeping, nothing unclean and nothing that maketh a lie. It is a city four square whose light is the glory of God and there is no night there. In conclusion the speaker quoted Bishop Wilberforce's answer as to how to get to heaven: "Turn to the right and go straight ahead." In other words, the seeker after heaven must turn to Christ and go straightforward in His service all the days of his life.

A Daily Tour of Glendale Stores

SEE THE DOLL CONTEST AT ROBERTS AND ECHOLS'

You can purchase such attractive gifts at a nominal cost at that popular drug store around the corner, Roberts & Echols, which is located on Broadway near Brand boulevard.

Perhaps you have never associated a drug store with the matter of gift purchasing.

But, a visit to Roberts & Echols will convince one of the wisdom of such.

Here you will find at moderate prices such acceptable gifts at kodaks, kodak books and supplies, fountain pens, Eversharp pencils, toilet articles, shaving and brush sets, box candies, etc.

An interesting assortment of manicure sets is shown. These are from a sample line and are especially good values, having been bought at 25 per cent discount and priced accordingly, Mr. Roberts states. For the one who is contemplating a journey, a "Fitall" traveling case will be most useful. A very large assortment of holiday cards are also shown at this store.

The large "walk and talk" doll, valued at $20, shown in the window of Roberts & Echols' drug store is the big attraction for the "kiddies." With every 25c purchase of Nyal preparations the purchaser is given a ticket with the doll's name on it. On December 22 an envelope, containing five tickets, each with a doll's name and numbered one, two, three, four and five, will be opened. The ticket numbered one will be given first preference, and the person holding the ticket with the name corresponding will be presented with the doll if he brings the ticket to Roberts & Echols' within twenty-four hours from the time the drawing is made. If not, ticket numbered two will be good for the next twenty-four hours, and so on until the doll is claimed.

W. E. HEALD, JEWELER HELPS XMAS SELECTION

Like all the merchants, W. E. Heald at 127 West Broadway, is helping out Santa Claus with some bargains in silver novelties in spoons, forks, butter spreaders, and the like, also wrist watches at exceptional prices. He is closing out a line of fancy chains and some very beautiful pearl necklaces at cutrate prices to make a place for other goods coming and those looking for jewelry of this sort will do well to visit his place of business.

Mr. Heald is an experienced jeweler who specializes on repair work and who carries his stock as a side-line on which he does not plan to make an extravagant profit. What he has is first-class and what he says can be depended upon.

GLENDALE DRY GOODS CO. HAS WONDERFUL STOCK

Discriminating shoppers are finding their way to the Glendale Dry Goods company on East Broadway for certain lines of Christmas goods, of which an exceptional stock can be found at wonderful prices. In boudoir caps, for example, some astonishingly pretty things at very low figures are to be had. Also of great interest is a collection of little Christmas novelties containing many little articles suitable for men as well as women all put up in Christmas boxes, such as necktie racks, fancy shoe trees, shoe cleaners, key racks, and the like. These are merely the holiday screen for the substantial, everyday merchandise to be found at the counters behind them, the excellent stock of sweaters and scarfs, hosiery, ready to wear dresses, and a very fine stock of children's clothing.

LILLIPUTIAN VISIONS

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE
Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.
(Copyright, 1922, by The Associated Newspapers)

There is a type of dream—as of waking hallucination—which is of rare occurrence, yet which would certainly seem to warrant more attention than scientists have yet given it. I refer to so-called Lilliputian visions.

In his amazing travels, it will be remembered, the famous Gulliver came to a land inhabited by people only a few inches tall. Those who experience Lilliputian visions similarly see tiny folk, also animals and other objects of like proportions. As in this instance, reported by a man who had a Lilliputian vision while wide awake:

"I was astonished and amused to see appear, on a kind of ledge going the round of the room, formed by beams situated at some distance from the ceiling, about a hundred little men and women about six inches in height. They wore yellow, red or blue trousers and skirts. The men had a kind of fez and the women wore bonnets. Certain of them were mounted on small bay-colored horses.

"All this little world in miniature walked, stopped, gesticulated, turned round and appeared to be speaking without my hearing a sound. These personages gradually disappeared and departed in columns at the end of half an hour."

Similarly, Dr. Raoul Leroy mentions the case of a French physician who, "during the great war, while struggling against sleep during a night march at the front, saw a troop of little gnomes, clothed in curious costumes and highly colored, advancing toward him along the road."

Almost all who have had waking Lilliputian visions stress the bright coloring of the clothing worn by the little people who appear to them. In Lilliputian dreams, on the contrary, color would seem to be usually absent, as in the case of dreams in general. And sometimes there is a singular cinematographic effect.

Of this I can speak from personal experience. A few years ago, on four or five occasions at irregular intervals, I had dreams in which I seemed to be looking from a great distance at a screen, not more than four by five or six inches in size, on which a moving picture drama was enacted before me. Among the personages of these microscopic dramas I recognized relatives and friends, and I remember marveling that I could see them so clearly from so great a distance.

It was not long afterward that I had a period of ill-health, due, as was later found, to an alveolar abscess. That there probably was a direct connection between the toxic action of the abscess and my dreams is strongly suggested by the fact that, according to Leroy, one of the few savants to make any real study of Lilliputian visions:

"These psycho-sensorial troubles occur in toxic or infectious states, when the centers are excited by any kind of poison which at the same time has a perverting action on the consicous mind."

Which does not mean, though, that Lilliputian visions are necessarily and always symptomatic of disease. They may be due to nothing more serious than poisoning by fatigue, as in the case of the French medical man who saw the troop of gnomes. In such a circumstance they indicate merely a great need for rest.

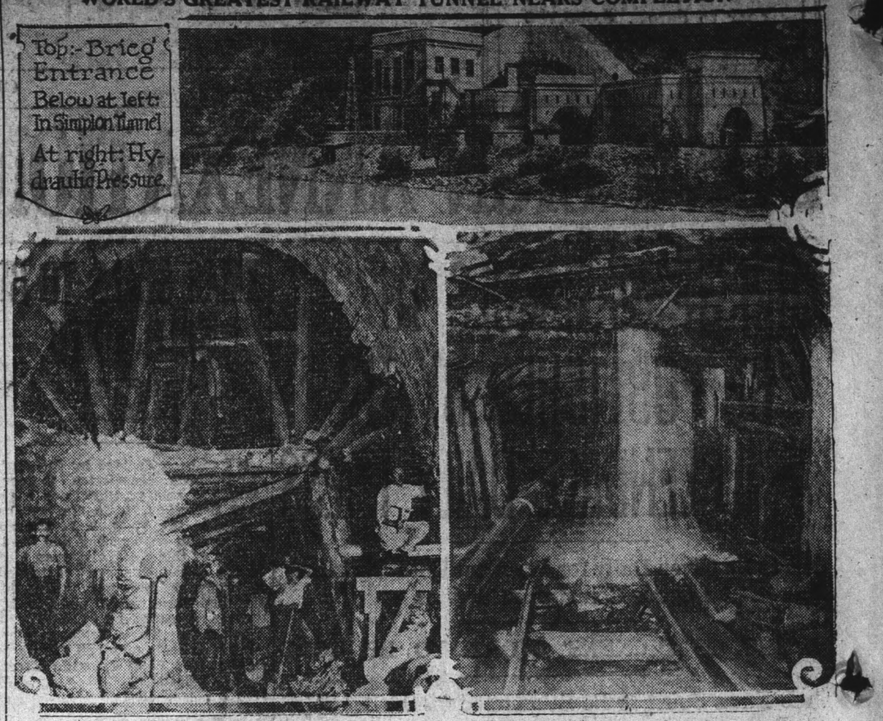
WORLD'S GREATEST RAILWAY TUNNEL NEARS COMPLETION



The great Simplon tunnel under the Alps, connecting Switzerland and Italy, on which work was begun twenty years ago, is nearing completion. It is one of the greatest engineering feats ever attempted, running twelve and one-half miles long, 10,000 feet under the top of the Alps. The tunnel reaches from Breig, Switzerland, to Iselle, Italy. Instead of a double-track bore, two single-track excavations have been made, sixty feet apart. The boring was done with hydraulic pressure.

"HAUNTED HOUSE" HOME OF SPIRITS EXORCISED BY VOLSTEAD

On the outskirts of New York city, near Coney Island, is a house that for a long time has had the reputation in the Italian colony in which it stands of being haunted. Up-to-date bootleggers overlook no bets. They rented the building, were unmolested by their superstitious neighbors, and were doing a fine business until some prosaic prohibition officers who never heard of the spirit world broke down the doors. This photograph shows some of the barrels of whiskey and red wine they found in the cellar.

DENTIST-SENATOR AND FARMER-GOVERNOR GET CLOSE TO NATURE

Governor-elect Jonathan M. Davis is seen above with Mrs. Davis on their farm in Kansas after the election returns had come in. The other photograph shows Senator-elect Henrick Shipstead of Minnesota, resting up after his successful campaign. He went duck hunting in northern Minnesota. That he is quite a marksman is shown by the bag at his feet. Dr. Shipstead—in private life he is a dentist—is a great lover of the outdoors and formerly lived at Glenwood, Minn., the heart of an excellent duck shooting district.

'ROBIN HOOD' TO ENTERTAIN GLENDALIANS

The people of Glendale are invited to witness Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood at Grauman's Hollywood Egyptian theater, Hollywood boulevard and McCadden place by Sid Grauman, Southland's most noted showman.

Today marks the start of the ninth week of the engagement of this marvelous film play, during which Douglas Fairbanks as the romantic outlaw of England of the middle ages has drawn thousands of cinema devotees to Los Angeles' newest playhouse. Coupled with the master product of the world's greatest artist-producer is the regal setting accorded it by Sid Grauman, which has not been attempted at any other showing of the production. The Nottingham Castle Pageant with fifty players wearing the original Robin Hood costumes, and featuring a beautiful dancer; the music accompaniment, written by Victor Shertzinger and played by the Hollywood Egyption orchestra under Jan Sofer's direction; the organ solos on the mighty Wurlitzer by Frederick Burr Scholl; the Egyption village in the forecourt of the theater, and the distinctive architecture of this theater have all combined to bring tremendous crowds to Hollywood and make Los Angeles' first run of Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood a record breaker.

BAPTISTS URGED TO BUILD NEW CHURCH

"Your church is neither a sick nor a baby church," said Dr. W. F. Harper, state secretary of the Baptist church in a discourse at the First Baptist church of Glendale, Sunday morning. "The growth you have made is wonderful. You surely need a new house of worship, and I am hoping soon to see it in course of construction. You simply must care for the growing population of your community.

Dr. Harper took his text from the 26th verse of the 29th chapter of Mathew. He continued:

"My subject is, 'And He Went a Little Farther.' Those words are a challenge to the church today. If we are to get what we should out of our religion we must go a little farther than we have ever done before.

"At the gate of the Garden of Gethsemane, Christ told his disciples to wait until he 'went a little farther' to pray. He went only a stone's throw away. He had business with his Father. That business concerned our salvation. Like Jesus we must get our deepest Christian experience along with God. You know how that is.

"There is another time when you must go alone with God, and that is when you pass out of this life. Friends and relatives may go to the brink with you, but there you must part. You must go on alone.

"Jesus' life has been searched by friend and foe and there is nothing in it that can be criticised. There has never been one so holy. Never man spake like He. If Jesus had failed at Gethsemene, He would have been the greatest failure in the world.

"He came not only to lay down words of law, but to minister. He came to redeem the human race, to breathe eternal life upon mankind.

"Man is a failure. All have sinned. The word tells us that the soul that sinneth shall die Jesus had made it posible for us to escape. 'For God so loved the word that He gave His only begotten Son,' that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish, but have everlasting life.'

"We fail because we do not go 'a little farther.' We sometimes get almost to the kingdom, but it is that little space or that little something that separate us. We fail to take that last step.

"God does not will that any should stay out of the gate. He has made it possible for us to go in and find shelter. It is up to us."

WHAT COLLEGE F. B. OWES THE PUBLIC

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Chicago university students opposed the suggestion that a big stadium be built at the university to accommodate the crowds that want to see inter-collegiate football in that city.

The attitude was taken that present facilities were sufficient to accommodate the students of the university and that Chicago was not playing football for the public.

Harvard, Yale and Princeton refuse to place tickets on public sale for the "Big Three" games, on the grounds that the public is not entitled to see the games until the alumni has been taken care of.

Harvard, Yale and Princeton cannot be criticised as they are perfectly within their rights in maintaining that their own should be accommodated first and it is known that the demands of their own alumni are far greater than the supply of tickets.

Chicago also may be right in considering that football is not conducted there for the public, although it may be taken by some as rather snobbish in ignoring the fact that the public is becoming vastly interested in football.

Private and semi-private institutions have every right to make arbitrary measures for the regulation of their sports, but when public and government institutions assume "the public be damned" attitude, the public has a right to rise on its rears and paw the air.

* * * * * *

Distribution of the tickets for the recent Army-Navy game in Philadelphia reached almost the point of a scandal that should receive some attention from Washington.

West Point and Annapolis cannot take the stand that their annual football game is a private affair. They do not play at West Point and Annapolis, but make a play for public patronage by playing in the largest stadium available.

In the new Pennsylvania stadium 10,000 more seats were available than were provided at the Polo grounds for the inter-service game last year and yet the tickets were scarcer than ever.

Few except scalpers had tickets in Philadelphia. Where thousands of football fans were ready and willing to pay the face value for the tickets, they had to go to bellhops, chauffeurs and newsboys for tickets and pay as much as $15 to $25 for them.

The point in question is—if all kinds of scalpers were able to get the tickets, why was the public not given the same opportunity?

Several prominent newspapers and news associations in New York and Philadelphia, which at least deserve courtesy for the columns and columns of news space devoted to the game, wrote to West Point and Annapolis to buy tickets and they were not even given the courtesy of an answer.

Editors who wanted to see the game had to go to scalpers and buy the tickets at outlandish prices.

* * * * * *

Yale, Harvard and Princeton have a most effective way of checking the activities of scalpers. The athletic officials at the "Big Three" institutions know where every ticket goes. When tickets are found in the hands of scalpers, the numbers are checked back, the original buyer is discovered and he goes on the black list for life.

This is real distribution of tickets. If the Army and Navy officials are opposed to working with scalpers, they could find out who allowed the thousands of tickets to get into the hands of speculators.

If Pennsylvania University students, little petty politicians, or Army or Navy officers scalped tickets, the West Point and Annapolis officials surely should know it. If they don't want the public to see their games, their ambition will be realized by a continuation of their present policy.

TALKING CHANGES IN F. B. COACHES

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Despite the disappointing showing made by a Yale eleven that was expected to be one of the best ever turned out at New Haven, few close to the athletic inside at Yale expect the scalp of Tad Jones to be exacted as a penalty for the disappointment.

The impression seems general among other coaches and critics in the east that Jones did well with the material he had at his disposal. He taught them sound football and gave them good plays, but he couldn't put football instinct in heads where it didn't seem to exist.

The material looked fine when it started the season and it still looks good for next year, but the brain cannot be judged from the outside. Only actual combat brings out an athlete's ability to think quickly and judge wisely.

In conflict, the Yale team seemed to possess everything below the shoulders.

* * * * * *

Something was radically wrong with that Yale team. In four major engagements against Iowa, Army, Princeton and Harvard, Yale was able to score only one touchdown. Also Yale hasn't made a touchdown against Harvard since 1916.

* * * * * *

Harvard started out like the most powerful team in the east, but it slumped badly late in the season and lost to Princeton and Brown. However, the Crimson got sweet satisfaction out of the season by a victory over Yale.

Because a big easern coach loses one or two important games, it is generally predicted that he will lose his job.

Rumors were out before the Yale game that Bob Fisher would be succeeded next year as the director of the Harvard coaching system.

Harvard laughed at the report and Fisher smiled—making it unanimous.

* * * * * *

Just as the close of baseball season brings gossip annually about numerous changes in management, so the termination of the football season gives rise every year to reports of many switches in coaches.

It has been reported that Bill Roper will not return to Princeton next year—not that Roper hasn't been considered as a huge success in handling the Tigers, but because he is said to be considering retirement by the pressure of outside business.

Roper has been paying a great deal of attention to politics in Philadelphia and he has a good law practice. The reports have it that he is to be appointed to a responsible government position and that he will retire from football this winter.

* * * * * *

Hugo Bezdek, whose great success with football, basketball and baseball at Penn State has given him the rank of one of the best all-round coaches in the east, is considering an offer to manage the Phliadelphia Nationals.

Bezdek had a swing at major league baseball as the manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates and while he was not there long enough to test his ability, he is generally given credit for laying the foundation for the present good team in Pittsburgh.

CLOSING MEETING OF LA CRESCENTA WOMEN'S CLUB

Mrs. Minnie Z. Jaffa, the well known authoress and playwright of Los Angeles, is the outstanding feature of the afternoon's program. Mrs. O. C. Miller and Mrs. J. C. Martin will be co-hostesses. This meeting of the club will be open to guests.

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

By S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift.

NEVER before in the history of the world has there been such urgent need of the universal practices of thrift. From the most reliable statistics obtainable at this time, the total world indebtedness is $380,000,000,000. This includes all the national obligations of one hundred countries and colonies.

S. W. STRAUS

As an indication of the rapid inroads that the war and various forms of waste have made on the resources of humanity, a few comparative figures may be quoted. The total pre-war indebtedness of the one hundred countries and colonies was $43,000,000,000. At the end of the war this amount had risen to $205,000,000,000. Therefore, world wide national indebtedness increased $162,000,000,000 during the four year war period, or at the rate of a little over $40,000,000,000 a year. Between 1918 and 1921, the date of the latest available figures bearing on this subject, the increase was $175,000,000,000, or over $50,000,000,000 per year.

It is to be borne in mind, of course, that these figures do not make an entirely accurate revelation of the world-wide financial status. Money in itself is not wealth. It is merely the symbol of wealth. Also, a portion of world indebtedness would be eliminated if all the nations could get together and balance accounts among themselves.

In searching for the root of advancing commodity costs, world-wide economic instability, and social unrest, one need go no further than these figures. People in all countries must work and save and develop efficiency. And, as America is today the leader of nations, it is the rightful duty of the people of this country to set an example in thrift for all humanity to follow.

CHRISTIANITY'S SYMBOLS ARE EXPLAINED

"Meaning of the Christian Symbols" was the subject of the address by Dr. Funk at the First Lutheran church, Sunday morning.

"On the preceding Lord's day we spoke to you on 'Selling Points in Our Religion,'" he said. "There are times when you will be called upon to interpret the character and spirit of your religion to those who may not be acquainted with our church; times when you will be met with the inquiry, 'What mean ye by this service?' As a good salesman is able to present the strong points in favor of his particular commodity, so you should be able as a wide awake progressive churchman, to give—in the language of today—the selling points of our religious life and worship.

"Your church, broadly speaking, holds certain fundamental principles and teachings that merit the loyal and enthusiastic support of her members. She has a history and a record for achievements that are not excelled by any other religious body. In the European countries of Norway, Denmark and Sweden, 98 per cent of the population are members of the Lutheran church. The Lutheran church is first among protestant forces, both in the order of time and the number of her adherents, her strength being almost equal to that of all the other protestant bodies in the world combined.

"Now, it would seem that in such countries where the people are noted for their industry, frugality and religious devotion, with the largest per cent of educated people in the world, it would not be necessary to send missionaries to convert them. Yet two of our leading denominations in America are sending missionaries and have spent millions of dollars to convert the Lutherans, or rather to make proselytes of them. The Lutheran bureau has made a formal protest against the efforts of these churches in Lutheran lands. The time has come when we must give the world a reason for our faith and an interpretation of the meaning of our Christian symbols; to answer the question, 'What mean ye by this service?'"

SOME REASONS

Mr. Pester — "You're twelve pounds under weight. Why did you buy that book on "Howe to Reduce?"

His Wife—"Well, I might get fat and then it would come in handy and then I might build up by doing just the opposite from what the book says. Besides it was marked down to half price. And—— Oh, you mind your own business."

BY WAY OF CONTRAST

In New York the cold is so severe now that it causes acute suffering. People crowd to the places where there should be coal for sale, only to find that they cannot get fuel. Winter is just beginning. The prospects for a larger supply are not bright, and the chance for an adequate supply is so remote as to be negligible. Of course, most of the hardship falls upon the very poor, of whom the metropolis has millions. These are the individuals who must buy in small quantities. Often between them and the actual nip of frost will be a single bucket of coal. Now some are unable to obtain even this infinitesmal amount. For such as they do obtain they must pay a high price.

The shortage is ascribed to strikes. The strikes are ascribed to the greed of operators and miners. Analysis of the exact cause is not highly useful. Unlucky folk, chilled to the bone, are less interested in the economic reason, than in procuring relief.

As the news comes from New York, the skies of this more favored region have cleared after a gentle and beneficent rain. The clouds still linger to crown some of the hills. They may gather and result in more showers, which will be welcomed. The sun shines with genial warmth. There is no hint of winter rigor in the air. Lawns are green, gardens radiant, and the mountains have taken on new beauty. And no shortage of coal could bring terror to dwellers here. In many houses no coal is used. Heating is by gas or electric current or open fireplaces burning wood, suffuse warmth in abundance. Where coal is in demand, the amount used is inconsiderable. In the total lack of a coal supply there could be nothing worse than mere inconvenience.

Residents of southern California read with wonder and pity of the straits to which the people of the east are reduced at every cold season. They do not wish to emphasize unduly their own blessings, lest this be construed as crowing over the less fortunate. Their sympathy is genuine. They think of the Tournament of Roses given annually in Pasadena, and the reign of frigid temperature elsewhere, and are sorry for those less happily conditioned than themselves. If the residents of the east realized the difference, they would cease to endure tolerantly their yearly visitation of woe, bad as that is, even when there has been no strike to make it worse.

THE POOR "WOBBLIES"

The cardinal principle of the I. W. W. seems to find definite expression in distaste for work. Just at present a number of them in the penitentiary for what are adjudged excellent reason, have gone on strike. At about the same time they went on bread and water. The outcome is not in much doubt. In all probability the recalcitrant prisoners will have to lay aside active devotion to their pet principle.

Police have found it necessary to arrest a group of members of the order at the harbor at San Pedro. This was done because of a marked tendency towards syndicalism. The syndicalist believes that by destroying the visible evidences of prosperity, the prosperity the result of effort, he will be able to show the futility of effort. If he can get everybody down to his own plane of sloth and non-exertion, his theory is that the prosperity that he has destroyed, in some manner will come intact into his own possession. So he declines to toil, urges others to refrain from toil, peddles burning literature, makes and even tosses a bomb, and fancies that he is about to accomplish something. Possibly he not always is as vicious as he seems. He may be unfortunate mentally. A reasonable description of him might be conveyed through a knowing tap on the forehead, accompanied by the words "nobody home."

The poet Riley wrote of "the squidgicum-squees that swallers therselves."

I. W. W. intelligence appears to be at about the squidgicum-squee level.

THE LAND OF OPPORTUNITY

Senator James Couzens of Michigan is a millionaire many times over. He is still in the prime of life. Once he had been train boy on the Erie & Huron line. A similar place was held by Edison in the old days before his dreams had become true. These men, as boys, had no better opportunity than any other two lads thrown upon their own resources.

Senator Couzens seems to be an admirable and peculiar type of man, in that he has not forgotten his early struggles, and remembering them, has a place in his sympathy for those situated as he had been in youth. He is kindly and human. In talking of his past, which he does with modesty, he says that the rich boy is handicapped, rather than the poor boy, the latter having everything to win. "If there is one thing of which I am intolerant," said the senator recently, "it is laziness."

This explains much. To the lazy mortal an opportunity means nothing. The circumstances which to a young Couzens would present an opportunity, to the fellow too slothful to reach out, has no meaning and makes no appeal. Couzens worked and saved his money. When he had a few thousands he let a young mechanic named Ford, who thought he had contrived a horseless vehicle, have the use of them. Later Ford bought the Couzens interest in the concern, giving in payment a check for $32,000,000. This payment did not make appreciable inroads upon the Ford capital.

Thus the mention of Senator Couzens brings to mind two other men who have succeeded, starting with no better chance. The success of none of these is to be measured by his individual wealth, but by what his activities have accomplished for humanity. Each had the endowment of energy and ambition. Each, as opportunity appeared, was ready to take advantage of it.

"THE TIGER" CALLS ON WILSON

The meeting between Clemenceau and Wilson at Washington was an episode not devoid of pathos. They had met before many times, but under circumstances as different as possible to imagine. At Versailles they had dreamed of remaking the family of nations, and bestowing upon it a new code. One was President of the greatest of republics; the other, as premier of France, had borne the burdens of a great war bravely despite his venerable age. One was thinking of a time when there should be peace and freedom throughout the world, deeming that he had framed the principles on which civilization was to rest secure. The other looked forward to the healing of the wounds of France, and a long period of safety from aggression.

How far both fell short of realizing their hopes the nations know. Their failure was tragic. President Wilson, in the effort to have his plan prevail, broke under stress of work, and, save as a dim, decrepit figure, has vanished from the political field. He has seen an American senate trample upon the code he had formulated. He has seen the League of Nations, drawing no strength from America, function feebly and ineffectually. And Clemenceau, "The Tiger" of France, beholds his country harried by fears of a new conflict and distressed by poverty.

The meeting of the two men was private. They met as friends, even as better friends than when their opinions clashed around the council table. Probably they did not talk of those days, this sick man and his aged caller, but as they talked of other things the mind of each must have been busy with the past.

TREATMENT OF PRISONERS

The old brutal method of treating prisoners has fallen into disrepute and for the most part, into disuse. Kindness has been found far more effective in winning the erring back from evil paths. In many instances crime is recognized as the symptom of disease, and the disease as subject to cure. Nevertheless, there is a certain decent discipline that should be maintained. Attaches of the prison belong at a certain level. They cannot command the respect of prisoners if they disregard the line that naturally divides the criminal from his keeper. The latter should be more than guardian of the gate and custodian of the keys. He should, to some degree, be guide and mentor, having authority; not a pal.

Stories that come out of the county jail may be fiction, but are worth enough study to determine the grain of truth that might be in them. Prisoners tell of other prisoners who have been favored by not being obliged to obey the rules. It seems that an accusation of murder elevates all female prisoners to distinctly superior status. Matrons, it is said, were accustomed to make pets of them, to kiss them goodnight, to permit them unrestricted use of telephone, to allow them to lie in bed at will. Perhaps the matrons are not guilty. If not, in justice to themselves, they should have a chance at official and open vindication.

USELESS SKY STUNTS

The almost fatal injury to an aviator, marking one of the incidents of Thanksgiving, directs attention anew to the uselessness of stunts in flying. Men who promote aviation as a serious commercial operation, or who see in it an instrument of national defense, are all against shows of this sort. They declare that spectacular exhibitions, indulged in to cause observers a thrill, not only represent needless risk of life, but constitute an influence harmful to progress in the profession.

The operator who met with the (at this writing) latest local accident, was performing at far too low an altitude for safety, even providing that nothing had gone wrong with the mechanism. He was hovering close above a thickly populated area, conduct forbidden by local ordinances in many cities. He could not have been reasonably assured of missing tall buildings or trees or poles. Inviting a crash by his reckless antics, he was endangering others than himself, although happily none was struck when he fell.

Wanton exposure to hazard bespeaks courage of a type, but in greater measure it proclaims poor judgment. To protect the individual who declines to protect himself, is an obligation that rests upon society. There is also the duty of protecting the innocent by-stander, or in this instance, the innocent under-stander.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

"LOVE"

By Leonie Aminoff

An emotional and highly idealized, though pert, story of Napoleon's rise from poverty to influence and his courtship of Josephine.

The novel is rather replete with anacronisms of speech. Even the author bends to modern slang when she writes, ". . . he might have realized that M. Barras' extremely contented guests were feeding." Again in speaking of the Wars of La Vendee she writes, "A few good round shots . . . would settle their hash." Barras remarked to Napoleon (but he was intoxicated when he said it), "Beat the Jews hollow." He was possibly anticipating modern slang, as was Napolean in his note to Josephine, wherein the budding genius said, "When I see you I go clean off my head." Tallien completes the selection with, "'. . . look at her, . . . isn't she a peach . . .?"

The author uses properly the possessive before the gerund in the following: "How he hated Terezia's playing little jokes." (Page 35.) Then on page 254 she violates glaringly the generally accepted construction in the following: "There is nothing on earth to prevent you (the right word is your) imagining what you like . . ." Twice more the accepted rule is violated. On page 190 she writes, "There was nothing to prevent him (his is the right word) going on"; and on page 198 she again pens, ". . . But she hated Terezia getting hold of him." She really didn't hate Terezia.

Throughout the book any one is spelt as one word, anyone. This is not unusual in modern literature. "The Right Word" intends to determine its frequency.

The author gives us two examples of the so called "split infinitive". On page 106 we read, ". . . to ask the same individual to successfully grace society." And on page 108 there appears the following: "And it is confusing, to say the least of it, to unexpectedly meet a man's son who . . ."

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

There are those who say Christmas is for the children.

And they act upon that belief.

Supplying gifts and sweets and things to tickle the childish fancy.

And believing that their full duty with respect to Christmas has been done.

* * *

To make some gift or exchange some token has come to be a custom of Christmas.

So well established a custom that in some instances there is little else by which the time is commemorated.

Christmas has come often to be expressed in terms of gifts.

* * *

Christmas is for the children, of course.

It is also for all other persons little and big who believe in something bigger and better than mere material gains.

No one would say that the children should fail to receive their harvest of gifts.

But this is not all of Christmas.

* * *

Gifts began as symbols perhaps.

The emphasis was laid upon the spirit symbolized.

In these latter days gifts have to a considerable extent become the greater part of Christmas.

Because of the natural injection of commercialism into Christmas.

* * *

It is a pretty good thing to draw a line clearly and distinctly between the symbol and the thing symbolized.

The gift may be the symbol.

But kindness and generosity and openness of heart are the things symbolized.

A Christmas spirit comes bearing gifts of spirit.

Many bearers of material gifts have none of the Christmas spirit.

It has been sapped by demands from all sources for material remembrance.

* * *

Christmas is not alone for the children.

Christmas is a time of rededication and reconsecration of the spirits of men and women to the teachings of the Master.

If it fails in that it has failed of its purpose and significance.

* * *

Christmas is a time of consecration.

Of high resolve.

Of determination to cast out littleness and greed and hatefulness and the things that destroy the spirit.

Christmas is a time for revealing the divinity within the human soul.

* * *

Gifts are pleasing.

They sparkle and tinkle and glitter and flash and rattle.

For the time being they please the fancy.

And have their right place.

If they are given rightly.

* * *

But the greatest gift is the gift of a renewed spirit.

Of a soul made bigger and brighter and better.

Of resolve to live closer to the real spirit of Christianity.

Of a determination to be generous, kindly, tolerant, humane, understanding.

* * *

These are after all the great gifts.

These are the things that giving symbolizes.

The things of the soul that abide.

And that make Christmas a season for happiness and rejoicing.

Your bonnie brow was brent;
But now your brow is bald, John,
Your locks are like the snow;

And mony a canty day, John,
We've had wi' ane anither:
Now we maun totter down, John,
But hand in hand we'll go,

EVEN JOB ESCAPED THE "LOOK PLEASANT" COOTIES

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

We are all engaged in a national look-pleasant campaign.

The fellows who began it are the publicity men of those who are enjoying what prosperity the nation has salvaged from the war. To be sure the movement antedates the war, and some of the discerning were long before the war beginning to weary of the everlasting injunction to smile and keep a stiff upper lip.

It takes nerve to keep a stiff upper lip, and to have some idiot slap you on the back and order you to smile when all your energy is concentrated on plans to pay the grocer without committing grand larceny, to say the least, calculated to rouse a feeling bordering on homicidal mania.

Recently I went into a promoter's office and right over the desk was a big card with flaming red letters which conjured those who had lately been fleeced by the man in the swivel chair to "SMILE." The promoter was setting the pace with a six-inch grin; but the promoter had the coin. WHY should the other fellows "SMILE?"

To be sure we all know this is the best possible world. We have it from the professional optimists and those who sell stocks and bonds.

But Job had a little experience with adversity; Scripture records that his supply of patience was adequate; but with all his woes he was spared the admonitions of the "look-pleasant" lunatics, who infest the modern world like a plague of optimistic cooties.

We all like to look pleasant; but we want the expression to play spontaneously over our features. Spontaneity does not occur without a cause; consequently if we want to live in a world where every face is wreathed in smiles it behooves us to do something to make smiles grow. If we can't contribute our mite to help our fellow man to happiness the least we can do is to suppress any idiotic impulse that may arise to ask for a change in his facial expression.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

FARM-LABOR IN THE SENATE

[Springfield Union]

The farm-labor senator, Dr. Henrik Shipstead, elected from Minnesota in place of Senator Kellogg, will introduce the farm-labor party into the high senatorial circle for the first time. This phenomenon shows what the senate is coming to. A freak little party without a past, localized in the northwest, slips a man into the United States senate almost while no one is looking.

Senator Shipstead probably owes his election, first, to the Nonpartisan league, second, to the three-cornered contest that developed, and third, to Senator La Follette, who spoke in Minnesota for the farmer-labor candidate rather than the republican. Mr. La Follette's republicanism doesn't last across the state line of Wisconsin.

ONE USE OF A PARTY

[New York Times]

One of the great functions of a party in American politics is its use to punish the other. In that aspect of the matter no added organization seems necessary.

These are among what Jules Lemaitre once called "the ways of democracy." We may not be pleased with them, but we have to put up with them. There is no alternative as things stand today. And the superior minds at Washington, who were so surprised and pained at the revelation of democratic inconstancy on Tuesday, would have had minds even more superior, for political purposes, if they had the grace to admit to themselves that they might be wrong, and that the people would find it out and let them know it by rough decisions at the polls.

WALSH AS A PROPHET

[New Bedford Standard, Rep.]

Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, on the basis of the results of Tuesday predicts a republican rout two years from now. That is what he naturally would predict, but it must be admitted that he has some justification. The country is evidently not satisfied with things as they are and has shown its dissatisfaction. Whether the republicans control the house or not—and there are no returns on which an estimate can be made—the election must be regarded as a distinct warning. Wha thappens in 1924 will depend upon tl ability of the republican leaders and the republican President to sense the country's wishes during the next two years and to overcome the causes of the present disaffection. That is much easier said than done, especially in view of the conflict that is going on within the party between the conservative element and the liberal, between the industrial group and the agricultural.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Elimination of noises is recommended by Dr. Bundesen, commissioner of health for Chicago. He says that a surprising number of nervous wrecks are created annually by a conglomeration of sounds.

HENRY JAMES

There are a few forms of audible annoyance that might be curtailed in volume, or suppressed. There is an unnecessary clamor of sirens, ordinary whistles and bells. There is, however, but one silent city and that is the city of the dead. Growth is a process of tumult. Magnitude has the concomitant of mingled rackets. The rumble of wheels is not to be stilled, until people take generally to flying, and the airship has a way of announcing its presence to the ear.

As a matter of fact, city people not only are not hurt by some of the noises against which reformers inveigh, but they like them. When they go into the country, it is the absence of noise that creates the homesickness that causes shortening of the vacation.

In many trades there is continual clamor. The boiler maker, the iron worker, the tinner, the plumber, all hammer joyously. The elevated train rushes by, and far from waking the dead, does not bother the accustomed sleeper. But were it to slide past without breaking the stillness, the dreams of the sleeper would be disturbed.

People are fond of crowds, and this is the reason there are crowds. The crowd, whether at toil, or playing, is noisy. It yells at its games, shouts while at its tasks; tramps the pavement so that the thunder of the collective footfalls reaches stories above the street. It would miss its noises sadly; no longer would it be a normal crowd.

A score of typewriters click, there is the thud of linotypes, the operators unconscious of the confusion. They make noise, tolerate it, really desire it, and if thoroughly city-broke, would be lost without it. In this they are not different from others, engaged in a thousand callings, or in pursuit of pleasure.

At a luncheon in Chicago, addressed by General Pershing, who pleaded for more patriotism, and an adequate army of defense, General Charles G. Of course this is precisely what Small had done. The assemblage, fifteen hundred men and women, endorsed the resolution by a rising vote that left every chair in the place vacant.

In studying the death rate, the fact is encountered that Idaho has the lowest and best, and Maine the highest. One commentator ascribes the high rate to prohibition which has been the law of Maine for generations.

Of course prohibition has nothing to do with it. The death rate of Maine doubtless is high because of the inclination of the young and ambitious to leave that state of abandoned farms. There remain then mostly the old and the less vigorous.

It is likely that many of the robust emigrants go to Idaho, where they help to keep the death rate at a point far under that of the state they quit.

It is significant of the prosperity of southern California that November revenue receipts at Los Angeles were greater than those for November of last year. The cancellation of certain taxes caused a heavy falling off in the totals, in most places, bringing these to a figure below that of 1921.

Everything seems to show that southern California continues to be the "white spot" on the financial map.

WATCHING THE PARADE

BY JOHN PILGRIM

All the books I used to read and all the lecturers I used to hear because of the sins that were black upon my soul, and all the ponderous visitors who used to put one hand on my head and call me a little man, gave the same bit of advice.

"Work. Work harder. Work longer hours."

That was the one way to success, they told me in those days. But I do not believe it. Not that I am decrying work. Without work you do not get anywhere at all. But there is such a thing as overdoing the working, as Ted Hunter has just proved. He is on his way to Bermuda with a heavy twitch running up and down his left side and wondering how his substitute can possibly do his work.

Whereas the substitute may be just as good as Ted, poor boy. Or even better.

Ted has been the most industrious, long-houred, never-ending, iron-legged man of business I have ever known. I do not know just how old he is—in his thirties, I would say—and his health has always seemed perfect. He never took a drink in his life, he never smoked, he rarely so much as touched tea or coffee. His diet was planned for him by a physician, in order that Ted might get the utmost kick out of each bite. He exercised fifteen minutes each morning and his right arm was no softer than one of the pillars in front of the court house. But last week he got his.

"You'll have to lay off," the doctor said, "and after this you may work just one-half as hard and play the rest of the time."

Ted feels that he cannot do it. He has been working so hard and so long that he cannot bear the thought of cutting down on industry. He actually does not know how to play golf or rummy or bridge or the phonograph. When Father is in the house the happy noises cease because Father must go to work. Mind you, he is the kindest, most indulgent, best loved Father in the world. But his little folks understand that Father's nose is wearing a groove in the grindstone and that they must help.

So he's off to Bermuda with a twitch in his left side. And no one knows when he will come back or how.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—?

DAMAGED

REV. EDMONDS TELLS OF DUTY TO ALL MEN

Rev. W. E. Edmonds at the Presbyterian church Sunday morning, the eleventh anniversary of his pastorate, preached from the words, "We are verily guilty concerning our brother." (Gen. 42:21.)

"The great Dr. A. J. Gordon divided ordinary congregations into three classes: Anti-mission people, pro-mission people, omission people. The last, he said, were greatly in the majority. How shall we escape, if we neglect to tell of so great salvation?

"We are guilty, first, of disobedience. Christians 2000 years have been face to face with Christ's 'Go ye.' This matter is a test of discipleship. The spirit, back of the going, is the test of the obedience.

"Next, we are guilty of disloyalty. Loyalty is one of the things demanded today, and we need to emphasize it in this connection. The call of our Christ is higher than all the calls of men. And His reward is higher. Again, we are guilty of a breach of trust. It is no ordinary small thing that you are in the church, bought with the price of Christ's blood. The gospel of Christ is given to you in trust, you are a trustee.

"And farther, we are guilty of absolute cruelty. In heathen lands they turn out the helpless and aged to die. And we let this happen. Shame on this turning-out business! And they count it a catastrophe to have a girl baby! Our privileges of womanhood are only because of the gospel of Christ.

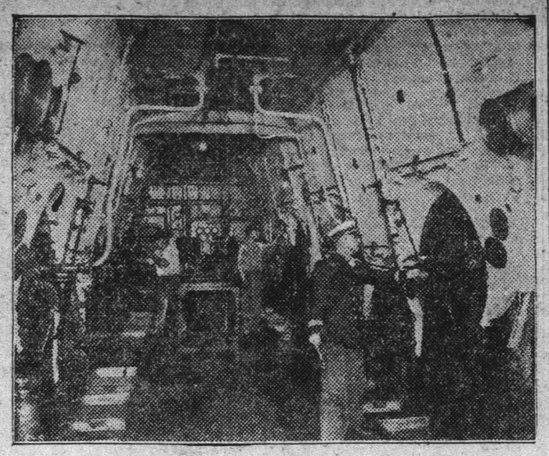
"Again, the church must be indicted for indifference, unbelief about the need of the world. Do we really believe that the world is lost without the gospel? How will you fix it up on judgment day? 'Look at these scars in My hands and side; depart from Me. I never knew you!' If you don't care, you haven't been born again.

"The church today is guilty of avarice. God put that money in your pocket. Those in heathen squalor, going into idol temples uselessly, dying by millions in despair—you are spending for yourself what should go to save them. We ought to give fifty-fifty. Whenever the church measures up for the neighbor of the world, it always has more to give. How much value do you place on an immortal soul?

"The wonderful Scudder family in India,—that missionary wife and mother prayer her seven sons and two daughters into the kingdom and into a vast work. Every birthday in the family she spent out of sight in prayer. God will run out of stars before He gets done with their crowns. You mothers, this is the greatest aim that is possible to you.

"Let God have His way with you and all yours. Be done with a small program. Tie up with God!"

Stoke-Hold of Harrowing Memory gone on Up-to-date Steamships



Boiler Room of a Modern Liner.

New York — A great many Americans who have crossed the Atlantic, and many others, who have read of the big ships on the ocean run, have vivid recollections of the stoke-hold, that inferno of heat and flame, where half-naked men labor to keep the fires burning in the boilers which propel the mighty ships on their way. The stoke-hold of olden days is passing. The discovery was recently made by a large number of visitors in New York, anxious to see an ocean liner and who were the guests of the United States Lines for an inspection trip over the ships then in port.

The visitors were anxious to see the fire-room, having recalled the stoke-holds of other days, or having imaginations stimulated by stories of the below-decks department of an ocean liner. To their amazement, they were led down into scrupulously white quarters, in which a few men, dressed as decorously as the officers and seamen on deck, stood about as the guardians of the furnaces and boilers.

The installation of oil as fuel on ocean liners has brought about the passing of the stoke-hold of yesterday as far as the United States Lines is concerned. The bulk of this mighty fleet is composed of oil burners. Oil burners not only make for greater speed, but more cleanliness aboard ship, and a considerable saving in money. In the party of visitors aboard the United States liners, were a number of engineers who were interested in getting the facts, and these were supplied them.

The vessels visited were what are known as the President ships, which are operated between New York and London, by way of Queenstown, Cherbourg and Plymouth. These vessels are equipped with six Scotch Boilers, to each one of which, three furnaces are attached. Each furnace is equipped with an oil burner. The bunker capacity on each vessel amounts to 3,550 tons of oil, or 23,075 barrels. The daily consumption of oil amounts to ninety-eight tons, or 3,670 barrels. The amount of oil consumed in one trip totals 2,160 tons, or 14,040 barrels, making an average of 84.5 gallons for each mile.

Since the installation of oil burners aboard the ships, the fire-room force has been decreased almost two-thirds. Oil burning vessels use but six firemen, as contrasted with eighteen, in the old days of coal burners. The fire-room conditions have been greatly benefited by the use of oil burners. The temperature on the ships of the United States Lines varies between seventy and eighty degrees. Coal burning vessels show a temperature in the fire-room of from 100 to 140 degrees.

In loading fuel aboard an oil burner, considerable time is saved, permitting a quick turn around for the vessels. Oil sufficient for a round trip can be loaded aboard in about five hours by two men. Vessels of similar tonnage and burning coal, would take twenty men about forty-eight hours to load the necessary fuel. The oil burners of the United States Lines fleet carry sufficient supplies to make three and one-half trips, or nearly two round trips without refueling.

There was a time when steamship captains and operators of lines hesitated about permitting the general public to visit their stoke-holds. The United States Lines, with its wonderful oil burning equipment, takes pride in extending invitations to visitors to go below decks. Women visitors particularly are amazed at the cleanliness to be found in the fire-room. The old stoke-hold is but a terrible memory.

Teacher—Hazel, I'm afraid you didn't study your lesson. What will you do without an education when you grow up?"

Hazel—Oh, I'll be a teacher and make other little girls study.

While in the country last summer, Dorothy listened in astonishment to the clucking of a hen to her brood of small chickens:

"Mamma," she said, "the poor old hen has got the hiccoughs."

At the Theatres

"RAGS TO RICHES" IS AT GLENDALE THEATER

Patrons of the silent drama, when they observed the spirited acting of 15-year-old Wesley Barry, the freckled and-featured player in "Rags to Riches," at the Glendale Theatre Sunday, were curious to learn how the yougster's untamable spirit was leashed during the time necessary for the filming of the picture.

Director Wallace Worsley, who made this Harry Rapf production, sponsored by Warner Brothers, says it was the hardest job he ever tackled. While Wes loves to pose for the cameraman there are times when the lure of the bat and ball and corner lot is even stronger; And during the filming of the picture, a fast ball game always happened to be in progress. Wes was always fidgety throughout.

"Say, Mr. Worsley, how long will it be until I kin get out 'nget on the team?" he would ask a dozen times each day.

Finally, the director hit on the only feasible solution to the baffling problem. At first he threatened to remove Wes from the small list of screen luminaries, but when this proved unsuccessful, he plotted a dark plot that won the day. While Wes was busy putting on rags for his part, Mr. Worsley stole out to the lot, and promised the boys that if they kept away from the vicinity of the studio for another month he would give them ten dollars apiece. The trick worked.

Wes instantly confined himself to the business of the day—that of making one of the funniest, rollicking pictures ever seen.

WOMAN'S WOMAN TO OPEN AT T. D. & L. THEATER

To those who know Mary Alden, noted screen star and famous everywhere among picture theatregoers for her supreme portrayal of the mother type, there is an often expressed wonderment why a woman, young, beautiful, optimistic and charming, should elect to produce on the silver screen the woman of middle age, or beyond, with wrinkles of work and worry, lines of disappointment and disillusionment, and a general spirit of age covering up young years.

And yet there is a reason, and this reason best can be understood by those who will see Miss Alden in the leading feminine role in "A Woman's Woman," her latest starring vehicle, which is at the T. D. and L. theatre. In this she is seen in perhaps her very best mother role, and she makes of this characterization a real personality—a personality to inspire and strengthen any owman who views it.

Wealth is something that enables a millionaire to stand up in meeting and say it is no disgrace to be poor.

SCOUTS ASKED TO PROTECT HOLLY OF THE HILLS

County Forester Flintham Seeks Co-operation of the Boys

In a communication to the district scout office, County Forester Stuart J. Flintham asked for the cooperation of the boy scouts in protecting the holly that is growing on the Verdugo Hills.

"We do not expect to find offenders among the boy scouts," wrote Mr. Flintham, "but as they are out on the hills a great deal we would like to have their cooperation and assistance to see that people comply with the restrictions concerning the picking of holly."

According to state law any person who mutilates or destroys any Toyon or Christmas red berry tree growing on public or private land, unless in the case of private land, the owner gives his consent thereto, or who sells, offers, or exposes for sale any of the above mentioned or any part thereof, growing in the state of California, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and subject to arrest by state officials.

In a letter to all deputy fire wardens, Mr. Flintham says: "It will not be our policy to make arrests for the picking of a few sprigs of holly in a reasonable manner but we desire to penalize mutilating or destroying the holly bushes, or the gathering of quantities of holly for the market without written consent from owners of the land on which it is growing. It is the policy of the Forest Service, as regards holly growing on public lands inside the Angeles or Santa Barbara national forests, to allow individuals to pick small quantities of holly for home use, but in no case for sale. The picking of sufficient holly for a wreath or for home decorations will be allowed, but it must be picked in short lengths of not more than a foot. In enforcing the law on private lands outside the National Forests, we might well adopt the same restrictions allowed by the Forest Service."

Community Service Executives Meet

Members of the Community Service Executive Committee of which V. M. Hollister is chairman, met today for a 12 o'clock luncheon at the Broadway Inn to discuss the community service budget. At a conference last week they decided to meet weekly for such a luncheon conference until the drive for the budget is complete. It is their hope that Don Orput will be permitted to remain in Glendale until the project is completed. Alexander Stewart will be here for a time to help with the musical portion of the community Christmas program and the high school has been reserved for next Monday evening for a rehearsal of Christmas carols.

COMMANDERY WILL ASSEMBLE TONIGHT

The Glendale Commandery is meeting for a 6:30 dinner tonight to be followed by regular work and the bestowal of the temple degree upon three candidates, Curtis C. Vining, F. G. Beckner and P. A. Shrader.

Next Monday night the installation of officers will take place with Judge Bledsoe as the installing officer. All resident and visiting knights are invited to the dinner and to witness the interesting ceremonies, but reservations for the dinner must be made in advance through retiring Commander George U. Moyse or Commander elect Roy V. Hogue.

BURBANK RESIDENT FOUND ILL HERE

L. M. Boyer, a resident of Burbank, was found lying ill in front of the home at 132 South Orange street, Sunday afternoon. After being taken to the Glendale police station, the Burbank police were notified and an officer from that department took him to his home.

FAVORED BY NATURE

His Wife—"How do you like my permanent wave? It cost me only $8."

Mr. Baldwin—"Years ago nature gave me a permanent haircut and it never cost me a cent."

Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Smith of 312 North Kenwood are the proud parents of a baby girl, born December 4.

The new five-room bungalow belonging to Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Shiffer, at 809 East Elk avenue, is nearing completion. Mr. Shiffer is a plastering contractor.

Every man has a lot of natural resources he ought to conserve more than he does.

Temperament doesn't mean running off with some other man's wife or another woman's husband.

Talkative men are great self entertainers.

MUSICAL REVUE ARTISTS IN KITCHENETTE ROLES

Joe Santley and Ivy Sawyer in Harmony over the Kitchenette Table as Well as Behind the Footlights

Those who have enjoyed the harmony of Santley and Sawyer in the Music Box Revue now learn that they are just as good a "team" at home over the kitchen stove. Joe Santley believes that the days when a woman's place was supposed to be in the kitchen are gone forever—that is unless her husband is in the kitchen with her.

The Santleys are mixing the filling for Virginia Sweet Potato Pie which they unanimously vote to be their favorite dish. Mrs. Santley (Ivy Sawyer) has kindly volunteered these directions:

"I bake the sweet potatoes (sometimes I boil them) and press them through a vegetable ricer. I cream the half-cupful of vegetable shortening, which I prefer to lard, as the former has no "taste," and is also more easily digestible, beat in ¼ teaspoonful salt and ¾ cup sugar, then four egg yolks, well beaten, 1 pint of the strained sweet potato, ¾ cup milk, and ½ nutmeg grated. The stiff beaten whites of four eggs are then beaten in, and the whole light mass is turned into a pie plate lined with pastry. This I bake until the pastry is well cooked and the filling puffy and firm in the center. This makes a pie usually larger than the two of us can eat.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS

Agitation is the antidote for stagnation.

You may guess what a woman is, but that's your limit.

A lazy man is always ready to hand you free advice.

He isn't much of a baker who eats all the bread he kneads.

Why pick a quarrel before it is ripe?

Don't trim your lamp so zealously as to extinguish it.

When you stand up for yourself others may be prevented from sitting down on you.

It takes a wise man to write a letter to a woman that doesn't mean anything.

And the world would be just as well off if some stage-struck people were hit by automobiles.

The worst thing about the man who thinks he knows it all is his inability to keep his mouth shut.

It is all right for a woman to help her husband, and many a girl helps her sweetheart even to propose.

Everybody sentimentalizes over the "dear old farm" except those who had to work on it.

A NIP WITH A KICK

Red-Nosed Gentleman—"Why, my own—hic—dog didn't know me this morning. As I came in he—hic—nipped my leg."

His Friend—"You surely can't blame him for wanting to take a morning nip, can you?"

He who never does wrong never does very much, anyway.

—here's how to sell used cars

Mr. G. was a dealer in automobiles and occasionally had a few second hand cars which he disposed of through the Glendale Daily Press Want Ad Section. He ran the following Want Ad in several issues:

OLDS.—1920 Tour., 5-pass., all overhauled; has original paint; dandy set of tires, cords, one extra; other extras; will sell cheap.
XXX DISTRIBUTORS
000 Brand Blvd. Glen. 0000

This Want Ad produced only a few indifferent inquiries, and Mr. G. was advised by a Daily Press representative to revise his Want Ad according to the slogan, "The more you tell, the quicker you sell." The Want Ad, rewritten, ran as follows:

Oldsmobile, 1920, Touring
5-pass., 6-cylinder. Run about 12,000 miles. Has original paint; just overhauled. Wonderful set of oversize cord tires; one extra tire and cover. Wheel lock, front bumper. You will have to act at once in order to get this bargain. Just think, only $675.
XXX DISTRIBUTORS
000 Brand Blvd.
Open Sundays and evenings

The rewritten Want Ad not only sold the car but produced valuable prospects for other cars. Remember the experience of Mr. G. when you have to write a Want Ad.

The more you tell: the quicker you sell

END OF SATAN'S RULE PREACHED IN GLENDALE

A large audience was thrilled by J. C. Watt, at the chamber of commerce, Sunday evening, speaking upon "Satan's Empire Falling." He said in part:

"St. Paul states that Satan is the god of this world. World here means the commercial, political, social and ecclesiastical organization of men. Almost all observe that an unseen evil power influences the affairs of men, causing selfishness, lying, fraud, deceit, cheating, stealing, all kinds of immorality, murder, wars, famine, pestilence, revolution, etc. It is important for their protection that all understand the cause.

"All dominion rightfully belongs to Jehovah. He created man perfect and gave him dominion over the earth. God created Lucifer, a spirit being. Perfect Lucifer became ambitious and said: 'I will be like the Most High (God)' (Isaiah 14:14)—'I will have an empire of my own.' This wicked ambition led to cause the downfall of Adam and Eve, the first man and woman. He deceived them by telling the first lie: 'There is no death.' He is the father of lies. (John 8:44) For man's disobedience God sentenced him to death and drove him from Eden. Thereafter all of the human race, descending from Adam, were born; hence they were born imperfect and sinners.

"Satan's invisible organization consists of a host of evil spirits. These also deceive by misrepresenting the dead and inducing the living to believe that their dead friends are alive and can communicate with them. Thus Satan's original lie—'There is no death'—is the foundation for all of their fraudulent, deceptive actions.

"God through his prophets indicated that the period of universal gentile dominion would be 2520 years; and beginning in 606 B. C., this period would necessarily end in 1914 A. D. That would mark the date of God's vengeance upon Satan's empire, when he would begin to overthrow it in his chosen way.

"Satan's empire legally ended in 1914 and the Christ, then present, began to oust Satan. Jesus said: 'The way you will know of this is, that the trouble will begin with a world war, followed by famine, pestilence and revolutions in various places.' The gentile times ended August 1, 1914, and exactly on time the World War started. This World War, the great famine that has come since, the pestilence of the Spanish influenza that swept the earth, the revolutions that are now on and have been on for some time in various parts of the earth—all mark the activities of the Lord in overthrowing Satan's empire.

"To offset the Messianic kingdom Satan has attempted to organize the nation into a great league; and hence he has drawn the commercial power, known as big business, and the political power, known as big politicians, and the ecclesiastical powers, known as big churchmen, into a combination to force upon the people a league that shall hold all nations together under Satan's rule. The Lord plainly says through the prophet Isaiah that these leagues and international conferences will fail and Satan's empire fall.—Isaiah, 8:9, 10.

"Jesus furthermore said that at that time the nations would be in distress, the people in perplexity and men's hearts failing them for fear; and we see exactly this condition prevailing.

"The evidence is overwhelming that the Lord Jesus Christ is now invisibly present and is dashing to pieces Satan's empire, of which the Apostle Paul says: 'Then shall that wicked one be revealed, whom the Lord shall consume with the spirit of his mouth and shall destroy with the brightness of his presence.'—2 Thessalonians, 2:8.

"The destruction of Satan's empire has begun and is in progress. Let us take courage, for soon it will be fully accomplished and Christ the Messiah, in full control, will in his own good time restore to man the dominion which was lost, and the earth will be filled with happiness."

GREENERY FOR HOLIDAY XMAS DECORATION

A pretty suggestion advises that Christmas decorations begin at the door and that the Christmas ropes twine the pillars of the veranda. In the frozen east it would be particularly inviting but in Southern California more and more are we adapting ourselves to our common native shrubs and the handsomest wreaths to be seen in the windows of the florists are of greenery gathered in the chapparal of the mountain slopes, a species of wild cherry. We do not, however, forget the scent of the balsam and cling to that bringing it from far mountain tops to form a part of our Christmas cheer.

The real holly, though it can be grown in Southern California, does not hold its own with the bright berries we call California holly, but which in botanical cataloguing is something quite different.

The poinsettia, luxury of New York, is a dooryard friend, but none the less dear. With so much greenery around us and flowers blooming in our gardens, there is less need for the elaborate Christmas decoration which frames the celebration in more northern climes.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

ON A PANTRY SHELF

"It's funny," said the Mustard Pot, "I like good company,
Yet here I stand upon the shelf and lonesome as can be.
My lid is off and I'm half full, yet not a single fly
Will stop a while and taste of me as he goes buzzing by.
I've stood out here the livelong day, and offered them my wares,
And they go by me by the score, yet no one stops and shares;
I'm white and clean and spick and span, and yet they pass me by
And light upon the Honey Jar, and I can't tell you why.'

'The Honey Jar is quite unclean and sticky as can be,
I'm frank to say in any way it can't compare with me.
It's rim and sides are wet and smeared while mine are clean and nice,
And yet I don't attract the flies or ants or bees or mice.
I wonder what the matter is; while I am cleaner far,
The buzzing flies and crawling ants prefer the Honey Jar;
I stand here with my lid quite off, yet they all pass me by,
To dip their bills in sticky stuff and I can't tell you why."

And then the Cruet said: "You know I'm filled with vinegar,
And I have learned the stuff in me won't get you very far.
They all go to the Syrup Jug, and there they spend the hour
They might be tarrying with me if I were not so sour.
So you are hot and peppery, and that's the reason why
They seek the sticky Honey Pot and always pass you by.
It's not the Jug that makes us friends who like to come and call
The stuff we've got inside of us is what counts after all."

Babson's Letter

HOLD DOWN PRICES AND RAISE UP BUSINESS, SAYS HENRY FORD

Wizard of Motor Industry at Wellesley Hills Gives Recipe for Prosperity

WELLESLEY HILLS, Mass., Dec. 11:—Last week while Henry Ford was visiting the Babson Institute, he discussed the business situation and prescribed a common sense dose for American business. This man whose daily income runs into six figures stated plainly that all this money was incidental—a bi-product. His remarks created so much interest that, today, he issued the following statement:

"The trouble with most business men," said Mr. Ford, "is the fact that they go into business to make money—to make as much as they can, as quickly as they can. They have a hard time of it because they are trying to get something that someone else has. The principle is wrong and even if it weren't, it would be pretty hard because there are so many of them trying to 'get' that the competition is terrific.

"The man who will use his skill and constructive imagination to see how much he can give for a dollar instead of how little he can give for a dollar, is bound to succeed. I cannot understand why people don't see it.

"What applies to an individual applies also to the entire country. A nation grows as it serves, as its people give the most they can to others—whether in the form of labor, material or distribution. We are now in a period when this is very important. Business is doing its best to come back but we must encourage it in coming back by holding down prices, especially prices of the raw materials which go into our manufactured products. I have in mind coal, iron, lumber, cement, bricks, etc. It is a great mistake for manufacturers to say that they do not care what they pay as long as all other manufacturers must pay the same price. We do wrong, in payng higher prices simply because we can pass it along to someone else.

"Most manufacturers," continued Mr. Ford, "begin at the wrong end. They ask the production department how much it costs to make the article, then they add a selling cost and a profit. Next they call in the sales department and say, 'Here's the article and this is the price, go out and get it!' At Detroit we have always figured from the other end. We began with a human need, then we wanted to give just as much as we could for a dollar. The product must be right, it must give service, so I experimented and tested for eleven years before we were sure the product was as good as we could build it. Then we began to figure out ways to make it more efficiently—to give more for the dollar.

"When sales slow up we don't drive the sales force and try to force folks to buy, we cut the price, then more of them can and do buy. When the price is cut it is usually cut below the cost to manufacture at the time. Then the production department has to figure out new economies, new short cuts that will deliver the same car for less money and they've always done it!

"The more you give people for a dollar the more there are of them who can buy. The larger your production, the more you can give."

Here we have the rule that has built up one of the greatest commercial successes of our day—the organization that has supplied cheap, efficient transportation to every country round the world.

"Things are coming along very well," added Mr. Ford, commenting on current business recovery, "and if they will only keep from jumping prices there's no reason why the improvement can't continue. Hold down prices and raise up business.

"If the merchants and manufacturers begin boosting, then costs of living will go up, wages will try to keep pace and we'll all go on another grand scramble of "getting" only to land in the ditch as we did in 1920.

"Maybe I am wrong but I believe these words demand the earnest consideration of every business man. We certainly do not want to repeat the experiences of 1920 and early 1921."

In connection with this statement the Babson experts have been checking up commodity prices and find that in 1915 prices were traveling sidewise near that more or less famous '1914 level.'

Under the steady pressure of European buying the trend turned upward in October of that year and continued to climb steadily for two years. After a brief reaction the climb started again and for another year prices soared.

A temporary decline came on the heels of the armistice but this was followed by a speculative orgy and prices "skyrocketed" once more to the peak which was reached in July 1920. At this point prices were 140 percent above pre-war levels. What had cost $1 now cost $2.40.

Then prices broke and we experienced the most radical commodity decline in history. During the next 12 months—July 1920 to July 1921—prices dropped to a point but 45 percent above 1914. By January of 1922 they had worked down to about 40 percent. Since then prices have climbed about 20 percent so that the average level today is 60 percent above prewar levels.

If prices hold at around this level with a gradual adjustment—lower building materials and higher farm prices—there is no reason why improvement should not continue. If, however, grasping business interests try to raise prices on the strength of increased activity, business will have another set back.

New York in 1793

On the streets could be seen the milkman wearing a yoke from which a tin kettle was suspended from each side. His cry was "Milk, ho!" or some corruption of it quite untranslatable except by those who wanted milk.

Pigs wandered around the streets at will until they became such a nuisance that an ordinance had to be passed forbidding their owners to allow them this freedom on pain of fine or confiscation.

The streets were dirty, and at night they were dark. Highway robberies were common. Pumps were located in the middle of the streets, and were a menace to pedestrians after dark.

The baker either carried his bread on his back in a tall, round basket or pushed the basket in an oblong wagon. The bellman went through the streets ringing his bell and singing and joking, and the little Negro chimney sweepers went through crying "Sweep, ho! from the bottom to the top, without a ladder or a rope. Sweep, ho!"

REV. BROOKS TELLS OF SECOND COMING OF CHRIST

The Rev. Keith L. Brooks spoke yesterday at the Men's Bible Class in the city hall upon the third chapter of John's Epistle. He said in part:

The third chapter of John's Epistle opens with the words, "Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us that we should be called the sons of God." This is peculiar to the Christian religion. No other religion proposes such a relationship between the worshipper and his God.

"John says that when one becomes a child of God the world will not know him because it knew not Jesus Christ. This sonship involves the absence of recognition by the world.

"While it is possible, as John says, for us to have a present knowledge that we are the children of God, he adds that it does not yet appear what we shall be but that we know that when He shall appear we shall be like Him for we shall see His as He is.

"It is not too much for the love of God that we shoud eventually be given a glorified body like unto that of Christ Himself. When Spurgeon was once asked for his photograph, he said, 'If you will wait a little while, until the second coming of our Lord, I can give you a much better likeness.'

"The Apostle Paul tells us in 2 Cor. 3:18 that as the result of faith's present vision of Christ the believer will be more and more transformed to the likeness of Christ Himself.

"John adds that every man that has this hope of Christ's coming in him will purify himself. The church in recent years has lost much not only of joy and comfort but of purity through the fading away of this hope. It is no mere visionary dream without power over the daily life. It is a secret spring of holiness. The man who believes that Christ has not only saved him by His sacrifice upon the cross but that He is coming in power to set the world right, has Christ in his thought more than any other man.

"A story is told of an English maiden's lover, who had gone to the Holy Land and had been reported slain. The maiden refused to believe that he was dead but kept watch day and night for his return. The maiden is the church of Christ.

"God tells us many times in His word that Jesus will come the second time in power and great glory. Jesus Himself said many times that He would come again. At His ascension angels said that He would come again. The Holy Spirit and the prophets said so. The signs of the times point to this prophesied event, and He will come."
